EXCELLENCE IN DESIGN | SOUTH CAROLINA

MEMORABLE FOR THE RIGHT REASONS

Shelter Custom-Built Living delivers stunning homes with unapparelled design and client-centric care.

“Building a home should be an enjoyable process,” says Ryan Butler, founder and second-generation builder of Shelter Custom-Built Living. “We want our clients to remember their building experience for all the right reasons—integrity, innovation, craftsmanship, and service.”

With a 30-year history of construction-industry excellence, Butler and his talented, in-house team are recognized for stunning custom homes, comprehensive design-build expertise, and a straightforward, seamless building process. By offering transparency, one-of-a-kind options, and ongoing communication, Shelter delivers an exceptional product and experience.

“We take houses from plan to reality, exceeding clients’ expectations along the way,” Butler says.

When current Bayley Street homeowners first envisioned their dream home on Daniel Island, they looked for the right architect and chose Mark Moehring, owner of Archidemic. From there, they knew they needed a builder with the capability to craft their modern style, and who had a history of dependability and amazing craftsmanship. Shelter paired with designer Mosmi Naik-Patel were the right team to execute their specific vision.

The exterior architecture was designed to purposely connect the home to Charleston’s historic architecture. “Step inside the home and you’re met with intricate details and statement pieces at every turn,” says Butler, “from wood wall panels and book-matched marble to custom light fixtures sourced from around the world and an innovative Control4 smart home system.”

The home’s drama spans from expansive Lowcountry vistas to marbled surfaces, gilded fixtures, and original wall panels that are a work of art.

“The end result is a stunning juxtaposition of historic coastal elegance with artistic, contemporary functionality, perfectly tailored for the modern family,” Butler says.

CLOCKWISE FROM THE TOP: The Lowcountry home’s grandiose exterior appears timeless by alluding to the region’s historic architecture. Brass and Orca Marble finishes add glamour to a modern kitchen. Windows and mirrors blend nature with elegance in this master bathroom. With an outdoor kitchen, pool, hot tub, and stunning views, this backyard oasis is a patio built for entertaining.
